

Edith Yeung

"Edith Yeung is a force of nature." says Mark O'Leary, Comcast Regional Vice President.

Edith is the founder of BizTechDay – the most impactful entrepreneur technology conference serving the entrepreneur community every year in San Francisco, a guest host of CBS 5 Startup Profile, the go-to consultant in building communities, a lecturer at UC Berkeley International Program, board member of the San Francisco Small Business Week, and a sought-after speaker.

Edith is passionate about connecting, educating and inspiring entrepreneurs. She delivered many content rich, high-energy and memorable talks in US, Asia and Europe and leads San Francisco Entrepreneur Meetup Group with almost 3000 members.

Prior, she consulted and won multiple awards working with Fortune 500 companies including AT&T Wireless, Oracle, Siebel, Autodesk, Cisco Systems, Symantec, American Management Systems (AMS), Telstra Australia, Matav Hungary Telecom and Taiwan Semi-Conductor.

Born and raised in Hong Kong, Edith moved to the United States by herself at the age of 16 and survived the culture shock with minimum English. Edith has led many lives: pianist, square dancer, software engineer, corporate slave, road warrior, consultant and entrepreneur. Early 2007, she left Corporate America to pursue something really meaningful to her – her entrepreneurial dream of empowering the small business community.

Seth Godin recommends her as "the person I would hire." Edith Yeung has been featured on CBS, CNN, Comcast, World Journal News, Marketing Sherpa and Sales & Marketing Management Magazine, Hong Kong Economics Times and Sing Tao News.

Edith does want me to invite all of you to join her at BizTechDay San Francisco this year, which will be held on October 23, 2010 Saturday at the San Francisco Design Center.
